STAND BY YOUR TOWN.

No town can be permanently prosperous in which the citizens and tradesman dependent on each other, do not patronize each other. The merchant wants a harness, for instance, and al though his neighbor is a good harness maker, and trades with him. he imagines he can save fifty cents by sending to another city or state for his harness. The harness-maker in turn, sends away for his groceries. boots, shoes and clothing. The shoemaker sends away for his coat, and the tailor sends away for his boots, and so it goes. As a result, the farmers coming in to trade, see all the tradesmen sending to other places for goods because, they say, they can save money by doing so, and come to the conclusion they, too. can do ty to the teacher today, and in better elsewhere, and then everybody is growling about hard times no business. No wonder the business men themselves turn the tide of trade elsewhere. for if they can supply themselves to better advantage by any one thing more forcibly than depriving their neighbor of their trade, others learn to try the same experiment It is a dangerous one to inaugurate. Prices are low and the tradesmen patronize each other, having no suspicion that confidence will be abused. Let it once be understood that the business men of its flag in surrender. Now, the any town are in the habit of sending abroad for purchases, and the business will languish. Having no confidence in each other, how can they expect others to have confidence in them?
